Indian Wells Brewery branches out into craft soda

BY JOHN D. BENNETT

If you have a hankering to step out of your soda comfort zone, Indian Wells Brewing Company has you covered. A successful craft beer maker, they are now also becoming one of the largest craft soda makers in the United States. “Coca Cola advertises that they sell 51 flavors internationally, but they’re never under one roof,” said Indian Wells Brewery Co-Owner Rick Lovett. “Jones’ soda pop has 15 in their lineup right now and here we are with hundreds.”

You read that right, hundreds. These aren’t your daddy’s flavors either — well, that’s not entirely true. They do offer traditional soda-flavored soda, some old standbys like root beer and older standbys like cream soda and even sarsaparilla.

Those with a more adventurous palate some of their 140-strong (and already heading toward 200) flavors include: bacon; apple pie; dirt; grass; sour apple; black licorice; Buffalo wing; peanut butter and jelly; chocolate; cucumber; John Lemonade: pumpkin pie; Rosa’s arroz con leche; Burros churros and Jorge’s horchata to name just a few.

“People will come in here and buy 24 different silly flavors and then they will use them at birthday parties in a blind taste test for kids,” said Lovett. “Kids get a kick out of it. You give them root beer or cherry and, of course they recognize that. Then you give them corn on the cob flavor. It’s just really fun, because they would never expect that.”

The Sour Apple soda was inspired by Lovett’s grandson who asked if he could recreate the flavor of sour apple candy. “Half of the other flavor ideas came from my criminal justice students when I taught at Burroughs High School,” said Lovett.

In 2010 Lovett and co-owner Greg Antonaros teamed up with Rocket Fizz (www.rocketfizz.com) and started down the path of becoming the single largest producers of different flavored soda pops in the world! Currently the partnership between the two companies have created 144 flavors and over 200 labels that are distributed in all 50-states in the USA and Canada, Mexico and many overseas accounts.

“We’ve kind of lit things on fire in the soda pop world,” said Lovett. “We’re chasing the soda pop business for a lot of reasons, the number one reason is because it presented itself as an opportunity and we just followed that lead.”

If you need another excuse to visit, it can also be an educational experience. The spring at Indian Wells — where all the water for bottling operations come from — is a California Historic Landmark.

Located at 2565 State Highway 14, Inyokern, California 93527, Indian Wells Brewing Company is open from 10 a.m to 5 p.m. seven days a week. They offer indoor and outdoor seating areas with a separate snack shack open from Labor Day to Memorial Day.

For information, find them on Facebook, the web (www.mojavered.com) or call 760-377-5989.

An open viewing window allows visitors to get a look at the brewing and bottling process. Rumor has it that viewers who perfect the ‘sad puppy dog look’ while watching the process will be rewarded with a free (age-appropriate) bottle fresh off the assembly line.

One day is all it takes to travel back in time and experience the beautiful area of the outskirts of Bishop. A visit to the Laws Railroad Museum allows you to take a walk back in time to the 1800s when the Carson and Colorado Railroad Company held in its incorporation to a new beginning.

“They planned to run the narrow gauge railroad from Mound House, Nevada, and the Carson River to the Colorado River, calling it the C&C Railroad,” according to the Laws Railroad Museum website. “It never reached the Colorado River.”

Visiting Mojave and surrounds
On the western edge of the Mojave desert and the eastern foothills of the Tehachapi mountains, Mojave is uniquely located at the cross-roads of two major highways and is central to many aviation, historical, and natural treasures and activities.

Our list below samples just a few of the unique opportunities available to those who visit Mojave.

History
Soledad Mountain Mining District – Southwest of Mojave on Silver Queen Road off Highway 14. Gold and silver mining location since the 1890’s. Plans are underway to revive the historic Golden Queen Mine.

The mining ghost towns of Garlock, Randsburg, and Johannesburg in the Rand Mining District. Take Highway 14 25 miles north to the intersection of the Red Rock-Randsburg Road to visit historic mining communities of Randsburg and Johannesburg.

Famous Tehachapi Loop railroad site – west of Tehachapi, visible from Freeway 58 near Broome Road interchange, and on Tehachapi-Woodford Road. Historic railroad loop designed by William Hood in 1876 to help the Southern Pacific Railroad gain the summit of Tehachapi Pass. Perhaps the most famous railroad engineering site in the United States.

Annual Manzanar Pilgrimage

By Jessica Weston

It’s an anniversary, but not necessarily a happy one. Every year hundreds of people make the pilgrimage to the Manzanar National Historic Site to commemorate a dark chapter in American History and pay tribute to those who survived it.

Manzanar National Historic Site is located at 5001 Highway 395 and was the site of one of ten concentration camps in which Americans of Japanese ancestry were incarcerated during World War II.

Since 1969, people have been making annual pilgrimages to the site.

This year’s events will take place April 29 through May 1. All events are free.

On Friday, April 29, the Friends of Eastern California Museum will host a public reception from 4 to 6 p.m. at the Eastern California Museum at 155 Grant Street in Independence.

The Manzanar National Historic Site Visitor Center is open daily from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. It will open at 9 a.m. April 30 and May 1.

This year’s ceremony starts off with a performance by the UCLA Kyodo Taiko drummers beginning at 11:30 a.m. April 30 in the Manzanar Cemetery. This will be followed by the procession of camp banners and the main program at noon.

This year’s theme is Kodomo No Tame Ni: For The Sake Of The Children – Liberty and Justice For All.

Dr. Cathy Irwin, author of Twice Orphaned: Voices from the Children’s Village of Manzanar, will be the keynote speaker. (At May 1 at 10 a.m. Irwin will present a special program in the Manzanar Visitor Center.)

Maytha Alhassen, a contributing author to I Speak For Myself: American Women on Being Muslim, will be a featured speaker at the ceremony April 30.

The Manzanar At Dusk program will take place between 5 and 8 p.m. April 30 at the Lone Pine High School gymnasium at 536 S. Main Street in Lone Pine. This is co-sponsored by Nikkei Student Unions at various California Universities. "Through a creative presentation, small group discussions, and an open mic session, participants will have the opportunity to interact with incarcerees in attendance and others to hear their personal stories," according to the committee’s blog.

Visiting the on-site museum is an intense experience in itself. In former years, survivors of “camp” (as they call it) have acted as docents for the event, telling personal stories to augment the many displays. The museum also features reconstructed rooms, displays giving historic background, and a movie presentation with historic footage from the era. There is also a gift shop with many books and videos documenting the area’s heritage.

Comfortable walking shoes are advised, as well as layers of clothing for weather changes. Sanitized toilets and water will be available on site and during the pilgrimage.

It is also good to be aware that Manzanar is at an altitude of 3,500 to 4,000 feet above sea level.

Restaurants are available in nearby Lone Pine as well as in Independence and Bishop but there is no food service on site at Manzanar, so packing a lunch is advised.

For more information on the Manzanar pilgrimage call 323-662-5102 or email.

Diaz Lake provides a scene out of the ordinary

By Christopher Livingston

With fishing in full swing, the Eastern Sierra has a bevy of popular spots to throw out a line. One of them, located eight minutes south of Lone Pine, right off Highway 395, is the 80-acre Diaz Lake.

Once a small creek where water was provided for cattle and vegetables maintained by the Diaz family, the lake as we know it was the result of a large seismic event in the late 1800s. The earthquake dropped the ground 20 feet. With more space to fill for the creek, it eventually turned into a lake.

Going to the lake, right off the highway, there's a small parking lot. Heading to the right takes you to the northeastern section of the lake, which is the popular fishing location. (Fishing and swimming from the dock are discouraged.)

Six different types of fish are at the lake: rainbow trout, smallmouth bass, alpers trout, catfish, bluegill and carp.

Throughout April, the Department of Fish and Wildlife (DFW) stocked Diaz Lake regularly with rainbow trout. The week of April 17 was the most recent it was at the lake.

Heading to the left from the parking lot takes you around to the campground, located on the western end of the lake. There, the grounds are sectioned off, ensuring that people have adequate space to park their vehicles.

There is a fee for camping at the lake: $14 per day for docking an RV and $10 a night for motorized watercraft. There are no shower facilities,

Every Memorial Day weekend since 1969, the town of Bishop, nestled on the eastern slope of the Sierra Nevada mountains, comes alive with the annual presentation of Mule Days. The outfitters and packers of the region wanted an event to start off the packing season and the businessmen wanted to draw vacationers to the Owens Valley. What began as an informal gathering and a test of skills, has grown into a fun filled, world class event.

There is no way to actually describe Mule Days. It is part mule show, part test of skills, and part Wild West show. It is an event the likes of which are held nowhere else in the world. Over the five days of the event, there are 14 shows featuring over 700 mules with their trainers, riders and packers. In excess of 30,000 fans converge on the Tri-County Fairgrounds and the Mike Boothe Arena to watch the events and visit the exhibitors. The fourteen mule shows consist of: Western, youth, English, cattle working, gaited, coon jumping, racing, musical tires, gymkhana, packing, shoeing, chariot racing, team roping and driving. For most competitions, veteran announcers, Bob Tallman and Bob Feist, take the microphone to both educate and entertain crowds.

In addition to competitive events, Mule Days has many other featured events to enhance your overall experience:

but it does have a restroom.

Even for those who don't fish or camp, Diaz Lake's relaxed atmosphere makes it a resting spot seemingly off the beaten path. There is a playground near the dock and an abundance of picnic tables.

Wildlife is also prevalent at the lake, from raccoons to snakes. Animals typical of the Eastern Sierra, such as coyotes and sidewinder rattlesnakes, are located at the campground, but they are nocturnal. During the day, one can see the red-winged blackbird or a raven flying around and singing.

Although the lake was quiet during the second-to-last week of April, it was still a tourist destination. While strolling on the dock, there was Tobias, a visitor from Berlin, Germany, who was staying in Lone Pine while embarking on a journey of the Western United States.

One thing, he noticed, was the brownness of the water. “The water is not so ... clear,” he remarked before taking photos of the scenery.

The reason behind the off-color water: the lake is fed by underground springs and lacks an inlet and outlet. Because of that, plus the high mineral content in the water, the lake has a brownish hue to it.

The lake is open year-round, with events such as the Early Opener Trout Derby on the first Saturday in March. For more information, contact the Lone Pine Chamber of Commerce at (760) 876-4444.

River but stopped at Keeler, California. It has often been referred to as “the railroad that was built 300 miles too long or 300 years too soon.

“As the word was out that the railroad would run east of the Owens River, people started to arrive at what is known now as Laws. A new railroad town was built. It took three years for the rails to be laid from Mound House to Laws, with the first train arriving in April of 1883. The depot, agent’s house, section boss’s house, outhouses, water tank and turntable were all ready when it arrived.

“In addition to the railroad buildings other construction quickly followed which included many homes, barns, and corrals, two general stores, a boarding house, eating house, hotel, boarding house, pool hall and dance hall, blacksmith shop, post office, barber shop, powder magazine and warehouses. Several industrial buildings followed later. Many ranches surrounded Laws and used the railroad to ship their crops.

The decline and demise of Laws and the railroad were the result of the local mines closing, trucking becoming cheaper than rail freight and the city of Los Angeles buying most of the valley for the water rights. By 1959 when the railroad ceased operation, there was no trace of any of the buildings at Laws as they had all been torn down for salvage. Only the depot, agent’s house, oil and water tanks and the turntable survived. All the other buildings you see at the museum today were doomed for destruction locally but were saved by being moved to the museum grounds. (compiled from the “Story of Laws” by Clarabelle Hawkins.)”

Whatever the charm it is brings 43 different venues on an 11 acre parcel of land that is surround by the mountains draped with white snow, know as ‘Old Tom’, that graces the spring fauna which is the foundation of the arrival.

Upon arrival, just about 5 miles from the little town of Bishop by taking the Hwy 6 off of Hwy 395. Once on the turn off you take a lazy five mile ride putting you smack dab in the heart of a time when life was so much different yet simpler in many ways.
