tonight's PICKS

THIS IS US
8 p.m. on KXAS
 The story of Randall — played as an adult by Emmy winner Sterling K. Brown — is key to two different eras in the new episode “The Most Disappointed Man.” As a youngster, his adoption by Jack and Rebecca (Milo Ventimiglia, Mandy Moore) reaches its final stages ... while as an adult, his own adoption of potentially the newest family member is in question. Kate and Toby (Chrissy Metz, Chris Sullivan) move forward in their relationship. Justin Hartley also stars.

BLACKISH
8 p.m. on WFAA

A major event in Diane’s (Marsai Martin) life requires the support of her family — which she receives — in the new episode “First and Last.” Dre (Anthony Anderson) starts to worry that his days of conquering Junior (Marcus Scribner) in basketball may be through, so he tries to psych his son out before their next game. Anna Deavere Smith guest stars. Tracee Ellis Ross, Laurence Fishburne and Yara Shahidi also star.

DAMNATION
9 p.m., 12 a.m. on USA

Set in 1930s middle America, this new period drama series stars Killian Scott (“Ripper Street”) as Seth Davenport, an insurrectionist posing as a small-town preacher. Seth doesn’t realize a ruthless tycoon is aware of his charade and has hired a professional strike-buster, Creeley Turner (Logan Marshall-Green), to stop an uprising by any means necessary. What no one else knows is that Seth and Creeley already share a secret and bloody past. Sarah Jones, Chasten Harmon and Christopher Heyerdahl also star.

McKean digging his role on 'Food: Fact or Fiction?'

If you've ever been at a dinner party with a bunch of strangers and found yourself at a loss for conversation, then "Food: Fact or Fiction?" might be for you.

Now in its third season Sundays on Cooking Channel, the half-hour series investigates the mythology and adages behind some favorite foods, delves into their history and examines the origins of commonly held food myths – such as the erroneous belief that eating carrots improves eyesight.

Yep, not true.

"It was a press release," explains the show's host, actor Michael McKean. "It was somebody trying to sell something that otherwise wasn't sales-worthy. It's a very interesting world."

As someone who likes food but doesn't consider himself a gourmet or a whiz in the kitchen, McKean nonetheless enjoys what he's learned from two-plus seasons on the show. He has been surrounded by cooks in his family, starting with his mother ("a very good cook but a Southern cook"), his wife, actress Annette O'Toole ("My wife makes very good stuff"), and his daughter Nell Geisslinger, who is also a writer and producer on the show.

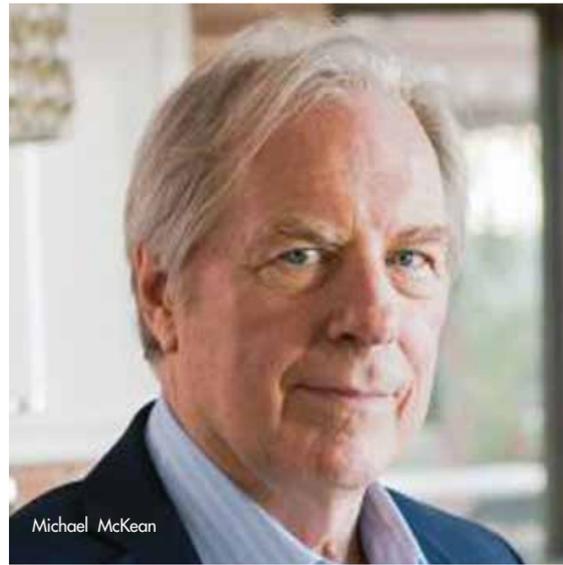

His tastes are pretty conventional. Given his druthers, Italian would be a regular staple of his diet though he admits if it was, "I'd probably weigh 700 pounds." He also likes chili, a really good hot dog and his wife's pizza.

"She makes pizza every Saturday night," McKean says, "and she makes pizza as only an Irish girl from Houston, Texas, can do it. I mean, she just has her own spin on it and it's legit, awesome pizza."

He's also not afraid to try new things, and if he's out at an expensive restaurant and can't figure out what to order, he doesn't have a problem asking for help.

"It's funny, when someone else is calling the menu, I usually find something I can eat," McKean says. "I went out to eat with Harry Shearer, who is kind of a gourmet, and he says, 'Let me order for you.' And he ordered a lot of stuff. We had kind of a tasting thing. It was a lot of stuff I didn't want to know what it was until after I'd eaten it, and it worked out pretty good."

"I don't eat a lot of seafood but I tried a lot of things that night that I liked very much," he continues. "So anyway, I'm not out to impress anyone with how I eat."

What book are you currently reading?

"I am reading a book called 'The Pigeon Tunnel,' which is a memoir by John le Carré, the great spy writer. And this is kind of a book of anecdotes and stories about people that he met over the years. ... So I'm really enjoying that. But I also have a big book that I bought second-hand about Walt Kelly, who was the cartoonist who created 'Pogo.' And 'Pogo' is a great favorite of mine, so I have that one going, too."

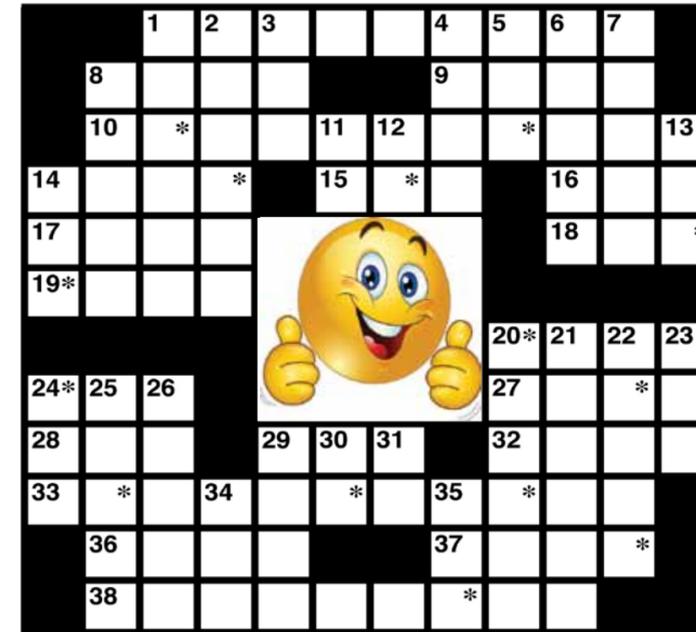

What did you have for dinner last night?

"Last night, I had leftovers, and the leftovers are the best kind of leftovers, which is to say it was (wife and actress) Annette O'Toole's chicken and dumplings, which is a stellar dish."
